STEEL HOLDING ITS OWN

Slight Concessions in Final Dealings, But Closing Fairly Firm-Bond Market Strong.

NEW YORK, April 23.-The stock market was of a holiday character, with business almost as light as on the dull days of midsummer. The trading was confiened to the room element, and resulted in only nominal changes in prices The general tone was fairly firm, and final quetations favorable, particularly in the small increase in loans, coupled with the handsome gain Consolidated Gas, on the signing of the Remsen gas bill, opened up a point, but subsequently declined over a point on realizations.

Steel preferred was under less pres-sure than yesterday. Copper was ne-glected, and Virginia-Carolina advanced a point on progress made in financing issues of preferred stock, which is designed to relieve the company from the burden of last year's expensive loan. The feature of the local group was an advance of a point in Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and Metropolitan Street Rail-way also was strong. There were some slight concessions in final dealings, but the market closed fairly firm.

NEW YORK, April 23.-The cotton narket was quiet today and devoid of any particularly new features not fully covered in the weekly review. The situation continues so mixed that trad-ers are not doing anything beyond endeavoring to scalp out moderate profits from the daily narrow fluctuations. Sentiment was influenced by the gener-ally fair and warmer weather in the ally fair and warmer weather in the cotton belt and the easier tone of the Liverpool markets this morning, and as a consequence selling again predomit.

Closing prices a year ago yesterday were: New York-July wheat. 77 1-16 subjoined, for all three years, excludes July wheat. 72½ cents; July corn, 45½ the $189,000,000 reserved against Governa consequence selling again predomi-nated. The decline, however, was confined within a range of about ten points. The day's prices were as follows; April, 13.65@13.67; May, 13.66@13.67; July, 13.88@13.90; August, 13.41@13.43; October, Arthur, when it looked as if hostilities could not be localized to Korea and Manchuria. The danger was exceedingly real, and had not the diplomatists devoted time to making peace instead of stirring up the trouble it could not have been averted. But Lord Lansdowne smothered France with kindness in the shape of Morocco and 8,000 square miles on the Gambia, and now all is lovely. The tone of the Continental bourses has steadily improved, hope reigns on the London stock exchanges, and the year which opened in dread promises to end in prosperity.

Immense Cost of the National Battle Parks

Economical Marking of Lines at Antietam Has Suggested Method to Be Pursued in Future---Interesting Data.

isting military parks, but this system, it is stated, has been found too cumbrous for practical purposes and unusually expensive.

New Park Schemes.

Many other parks are now urged upon Congress, each by a bill creating a new commission. The number of these bills proves the impossibility of properly dealing with the question by establishing a park at each battle field. The present four parks already have cost the Government nearly $3,000,000. It is not possible, and some legislators think present four parks already have cost the Government nearly $3,000,000. It is not possible, and some legislators think not necessary, to have a new park at each battlefield, although they believe it is vitally important that markings should be made to show crucial points of these battles.

Several years ago, when an agent of the War Department was sent to Appomattox to revise the maps to be included in the record of the Appomattox campaign, a curious condition of affairs was found to exist, illustrating:

fairs was found to exist, illustrating clearly the difficulty of marking battle lines. The old courthouse had been burned and a new one erected. The Me-Lean house, where the surrender took place, had been taken down brick by brick, with a view to removing it to Washington as a show place.

Difficult to Get Details.

The house occupied by General Grant as headquarters at the time of the surrender had disappeared, and there was nothing left of it but a little depression in the ground.
